Dear Kyle,

Your CT Pastors, Back to Basics magazine landed on my desk this morning. I am a church secretary and I read your magazine and CT, but the pastor rarely does.

How did we get to this post-Christian America? We should have seen it coming. It happened in Europe, where churches closed and most attendees were elderly women, but we didn't think it would happen here. We continued to build our modern day cathedrals, thinking it would always be the same.

But things changed. Culture is constantly changing, and churches must adapt to that culture. We see that God spoke through each culture, not proclaiming that any one culture was the perfect one.

We live in the 21st century. God is here. He is with us.

The problem is, that we are not with Him.

Until women are encouraged to preach the gospel, to lead out in churches, and to live as modern women in this century, we are doomed to self-destruct.

The 5 Challenges Preachers Will Face in 2018 needs a #6: The Female Voice of God. Congregations and pastors must decide which is more important – preserving the patriarchal church, or growing the church, even if that means that women will be pastors and preachers.

The future is in our hands. To be bold for the future, women must be allowed to serve God as He calls.

Kyle, you have a powerful tool for change in your ministry. How will you use it?
